DEBUT RESTAURANT FOR ZUAYA ON KENSINGTON HIGH STREET

Leading specialist UK leisure property agency, Shelley Sandzer, has acted in a deal that will see Latin American and Mediterranean fusion concept, Zuaya, open their debut restaurant at 35 Kensington High Street. The new restaurant is due to open later this year.

The unit covering approximately 2,500 sq ft will be divided into three distinct areas. The ground floor will feature a bar counter and dining tables with space for 30 covers. The basement will act as the main dining area, with space for 50 covers, complemented by an outside terrace with space for 12 further covers. Designed by Harp Interiors, the interior will feature dark brown wood and beige green tones. The casual-elegant dining menu will offer customers a fusion of Latin American and Mediterranean cuisines, drawing on the best flavours from Mexico, Peru, Italy and Spain. At weekends, the restaurant will host a DJ with the addition of live jazz musicians for special occasions.

Commenting on the deal, Tony Levine, leasing agent at Shelley Sandzer, said: "Kensington High Street is a highly desirable neighbourhood, making it a great location for Zuaya's debut. We are thrilled to continue working on deals that see new brands open their debut in London, keeping the city's restaurant offer fresh and exciting."

This signing follows the recent news that Shelley Sandzer's has secured UK debuts for bao concept, BunCo, and established snack, food and beverage chain, Old Chang Kee.
